

Pump Up Proposals Is Here to Help Design Firms Grow

You struggle with writing proposals. They are very time consuming and can be intimidating to write. And it can be frustrating not knowing why a proposal was rejected. We are here to help to change the odds in your favor.

You need a coaching service that takes an up close and personal approach to boost the confidence and morale of your employees to show them how to write winning proposals. Face to face and at your place of business is the preferred choice. This saves you time and money. It will put your employees at ease and make learning fun.

You only need half a day, and the time is well spent. First, we will go over some of your past proposals to see how we can make them stronger. We analyze your proposals and share our findings with you. Then we show you how to write a winning proposal.

Your team will create/update your proposal template with our assistance. And once we have that all settled, we will leave a customized easy to follow checklist that you can use to prepare future proposals. This will boost your confidence in writing winning proposals and making more money.

Your satisfaction is guaranteed. On average, our clients boast roughly a 32% “win rate” as a result of our coaching. We’re ready to help you do the same.

And just as our way of saying thank you for trying our services, we’ve included a bonus review of your next proposal within the next six months.

Click the link to schedule a free 30-minute coaching session conducted by phone.

Schedule my free coaching session now.